QUO VADIS?

There is an ancient legend in Rome and a church built around it (and a novel written and an epic movie made about it as well). Peter had come to Rome through amazing adventures (read the Acts of the Apostles) and he preached the Gospel message to the Jewish community and to everyone who would listen. However, now the persecution of the Christians was growing and he knew that he too was likely to experience martyrdom by crucifixion. Peter, the chief of the Apostles, the first Pope, decided... to get out of town. The story is that as he is already on the Appian Way - the great Roman road (that is still used today) that leads out of the city, he encounters Jesus who is walking in the opposite direction back to Rome. Peter exclaims, "Domine, quo vadis!?" "Lord, where are You going!?". The Lord explains that He is, "going to Rome to be crucified again", since even the visible leader of His Church is fleeing hardship and is basically willing to renege on his commitment to Christ and the Gospel teaching. Peter is reminded of the love of Jesus and the grace that God gives to every faithful follower of Christ and takes courage. He chooses to return to Rome and face imprisonment and eventual death by crucifixion. As we conclude a week of venerating the Holy Cross of Christ as part of the after-feast of the Exultation of the Cross... the Church gives us an inspiring Gospel reading (Mk 8:34 ff) that puts to us the same challenge as to Peter. Christ, Who died for us, now asks us to take up and embrace the Cross and the glory and sacrifice that it signifies. In our day we sense in our hearts and souls that we are called to witness to Christ and the truth of His Gospel message and the Truth of the teachings of His Church. This witness is beginning to cost us. Will we flee the city or will we take courage and recall the love of God? Will we choose diplomatic mediocrity or will we boldly be who we are as Catholics and live our faith and spread it? (Luke 8:21) Quo vadimus? Which way will we go?

Saint John
and his older brother
James
were among the first to be called by

Jesus and he left everything and followed Him. John was the youngest Apostle and yet very sincere and bright. He went on to live to 100 and wrote the Gospel and important letters. He also preached in many places and brought many to the Faith.
