THIS WEEK - WE CELEBRATE & PRAY

This week two countries that are dear to our hearts - Canada & Ukraine - will be commemorating very special events. In Canada - we will celebrate Canada Day - the 149th anniversary of our becoming a country (July 1, 1867), and Ukraine will celebrate Constitution Day - the 20th anniversary of their acceptance of their Constitution (June 28, 1996). Throughout the entire history of these two countries (before and after independence) there have been moments that were glorious and others we would consider dishonourable. There were times when it seemed that hope was lost forever and times when the turn of events was nothing short of miraculous. In both these countries ("nation-building" aside) the heart of progress was always directly related to the lives of millions of individuals striving to make a decent and adequate life for themselves and their families. Right now both these countries - here in Canada and in Ukraine - albeit in a different way, we find ourselves struggling for what is right. The outcome of social upheaval that we are now experiencing - again be it via physical violence as in Ukraine or the social offensive we are experiencing in Canada - will determine the future progress of the land in which we live. Let's celebrate!, but also let us pray...
